

BAUER BUSINESS FOCUS

Will Electric Cars Soon Take over America's Roads?

The University of Houston looked into the state of electric vehicles.

FLORIAN MARTIN

POSTED ON OCTOBER 5, 2018, 6:30 AM (LAST UPDATED: OCTOBER 5, 2018, 9:44 AM)

Florian Martin

Greg Bean, executive director of UH's Gutierrez Energy Management Institute, expects the cost of electric vehicles to match that of gasoline-powered ones within the next five years. Electric cars are becoming more popular. But what needs to happen before they overtake the number of gasoline-powered vehicles?

The Gutierrez Energy Management Institute at the University of Houston recently hosted a symposium and published a white paper on the topic.

The institute's executive director, Greg Bean, says several trends are coming together to benefit the growth of electric vehicles.

Click on the audio above to listen to the interview.